

The Daily Market Report

PORTLAND, April 19.—Though the cheese supply for the time is only moderate and the market firm, the chances are that this commodity will be selling at lower than present prices before the end of this week. The break is not likely to be a serious one, for as yet there is no surplus in the local trade, but that a decline is not far away is more or less generally believed.

"We look for no change in the butter situation this week," said a creamer man. "The current make is cleaning up daily, and in some quarters an actual shortage is reported. Instead of weakening, the San Francisco market has developed strength the past few days. At this time California butter cannot be laid down here for less than 26 cents.

"It may as well be recognized as a fact that butter production in this state has not kept pace with the increase in population. The output this year will not be appreciably greater than that of 1908. Meantime the population of the city and state have increased, and consequently here is a heavier demand for butter in this territory than ever before.

Another car of Texas Bermuda onions came in yesterday and was at on the market today, the yellow sort selling at $2.25 a crate and the whites at $2.50. The shipment was said to be of excellent quality.

A car of Southern California strawberries was on the track today, but a bulk of the shipment was for the sund markets. Another car for this market is expected about Wednesday. Small quantities of Florina tomatoes sold readily at the last prices. Dealers reported the last car of Florida tomatoes going fast at $3.25 $3.50 a crate, and the prediction is made that they would go to $4 this short time. One car of basins came in over the North Bank yesterday.

Two cars of oranges were received in the South. No price changes were announced by dealers, but the market was very firm.

There is little doubt now that the price of the egg market will be up from this time on. The week with the trade active at 22c and local storage operators said to be buying freely in the try and storing all the eggs can get hold of. The demand also shows no loss of strength and appears to have fallen to some extent the past few days and this has been something of a relief to the trade.
